

Inclusive Education Workshop

School Meetings- Are you Prepared?

Wednesday 21 February 2018

Two Sessions: 9:30am to 12 noon OR 6:15pm- 8:45pm

www.cru.org.au

Meetings with teachers and other educators are a necessary part of supporting successful inclusion - they can, however, be daunting!

Many parents of students with disability find school meetings stressful or want to learn how to make these meetings more productive.

Being well- prepared for school meetings, and confident about school processes, can help you to positively influence the agenda and discussion, and stay strong around what matters to you and your son or daughter.

This workshop will be collaboratively presented by parents with many years of collective experience in building partnerships with teachers and in advocating for a quality inclusive educational experience.

The presenters will include current parents of primary and high school students who will share tips from their own experience, useful resources and highlight potential traps. Handouts will be provided.

Presenters

The session will be facilitated by CRU Senior Consultant and parent, Lisa Bridle, and members of the Qld Collective for Inclusive Education.

Who should attend?

These informal discussions are open to all parents interested in successful inclusion in regular classrooms.
