Towards a Better Life

Exploring Social Role Valorisation with Regard to People who are Marginalised

Social Role Valorisation (SRV) helps to explain why people with disability are highly vulnerable to being excluded from everyday life.

While this rich framework explores how people are marginalised, importantly it also offers strategies to address these processes and increase the chances of people with disabilities to belong to, and contribute in our community.

In this interactive workshop the core themes and principles of SRV will be explored through presentations and discussion.

The material covered explains some of the common negative experiences of individuals and families, especially that of rejection. While this can be hard to hear, the workshop is full of ideas and strategies to make positive strides towards better lives.

"Jane is a warm and engaging teacher, who leads people gently through some hard conversations. A thought-provoking and worthwhile workshop!"
– previous attendee

Workshop Presenters

The workshop will be led by Jane Sherwin, a QLD based consultant who has been involved in the lives of people with disabilities, families and older people since the late 1970's. She is an Accredited Teacher of SRV, having been involved in its teaching, learning and application since the early 1990's. Jane is committed to working at a grassroots level towards arrangements whereby vulnerable people experience greater levels of control over their own support arrangements.

Joining Jane in presenting the workshop will be Lindie Brengman and Danielle Mason, who are studying to become SRV trainers. Both Lindie and Danielle work at CRU.

Who Should Attend

This workshop is being offered as a leadership development opportunity for people with disability and family members only. It is designed for people who are prepared to be challenged in their thinking, and are serious about working towards better lives for people with disability.

For workers who are interested in this workshop, please see the Values in Action Association website for upcoming dates at <http://www.viaa.org.au/>.
