Planning for Success: Starting High School

Moving from primary to high school can be daunting for both children and their families. For parents of children with disability, there can be added concerns about their children being successful in what can seem like big busy places. It can be harder to imagine what inclusion will look like at high school, and families can find fears and doubts creeping in.

This short online session hopes to build parents' knowledge and confidence about High School inclusion, including every student's right to be included. It will be relevant for families with a student preparing to transition to high school in 2023 as well as those currently in high school.

This online workshop will cover:

- Understanding high school dynamics so students, families and schools can work together
- Effective communication and collaboration to get supports & adjustments right
- How families can aim high and influence better academic/curricular inclusion
- Top tips for social inclusion in school over the teen years
- Anticipating and addressing potential high school challenges

This workshop will be held via a ZOOM Session.
Log-in details will be sent when you register.
