

About CRU

CRU's mission is to inspire, encourage and equip individuals and organisations to challenge ideas and practices that limit the lives of people with a disability.

We pursue this in a variety of ways – for a full overview of our work see www.cru.org.au/our-work

In addition, our expert consultants can provide a range of training and consultancy services on a fee for service basis. CRU works with the following groups to support the full inclusion of people with disability and build a movement for change:

- people with disability, their families and friends
- workers and organisations in the human services sector
- community, government and other groups

Become a member of CRU to access information and contribute our work. Application forms are on our website cru.org.au/about/membership

"The event was really very good. The day was full of rich discussion and ideas of how to improve our support. I look forward to the next workshop."

Consulting

Whether you know the issue you need support with or don't know where to start, CRU can work with you one on-one.

We provide fresh perspectives, build skills and plan the way forward in the following areas:

- Inclusive education
- Finding a Job
- A home of your own
- Shaping great lives
- Using support well
- Leadership development
- Other consultancies for organisations
- Customised consultancy topics

" I have read your notes and commend you for your thoroughness and sensitivity, as well as for your helpfulness in outlining where my brother should and might be going in the future. "

Using your NDIS Funds

CRU is not a registered NDIS provider, but if you are self or plan managing then you may be able to use your NDIS funds to work one-on-one with our consultants and to attend CRU training and events.

When considering using NDIS funds to engage with CRU, please ensure our events/services are aligned with the goals in your plan and meet the criteria for reasonable and necessary supports. Learning objectives are listed in each of the CRU events on our event calendar.
